The Art of Rhetoric
Rhetoric = The Art of Persuasion

The history of rhetoric and the concepts of ethos, pathos and logos began in Greece.
What is rhetoric?

• Aristotle defines rhetoric as
  – The ability to discover all available means of persuasion in a given situation.

• In simple terms, rhetoric is the art of speaking or writing EFFECTIVELY
Aristotle was a famous Greek philosopher who studied the art of persuasion.

Plato, another famous Greek philosopher, was his teacher.

Aristotle taught Alexander the Great how to properly argue and perform a public speech.
In approximately 300 B.C.E. Aristotle, who was a famous Greek philosopher, wrote a book entitled, “The Art of Rhetoric.” In his book, Aristotle identified the three methods of persuasion. He called them ethos, pathos and logos.
Whenever you read or listen to an argument, you must ask yourself,

• "Is this persuasive? And if so, to whom?"
There are several ways to appeal to an audience.

They are...
Ethos, Pathos and Logos

1. Ethos = an ethical or moral argument
2. Pathos = an emotional argument
3. Logos = a logical argument
The word "ethos" came from the Greek word ethikos meaning moral or showing moral character. Aristotle contends that a speaker must establish moral credibility in the minds of the audience. In order to do so, the speaker must show that he or she has expertise in the subject matter of the speech and that he or she is disconnected from topic.
• when a trusted doctor gives you advice, you may not understand all of the medical reasoning behind the advice, but you nonetheless follow the directions because you believe that the doctor knows what s/he is talking about.
Professional football players have established their credibility in sports by playing in the NFL. If L. Tomlinson tells us that VIZIO is the best plasma television for watching the game, we believe that he knows what he is talking about.
Ethos

- Ethos is a person’s credibility with a given audience.
Pathos

- Pathos is related to the words pathetic, sympathy and empathy.

- Whenever you accept a claim based on how it makes you feel without fully analyzing the rationale behind the claim, you are acting on pathos.

- Those who wish to persuade you will play with your emotions. They may persuade you with fear, love, patriotism, guilt, hate or joy.
Pathos = an emotional argument

- An effective use of pathos will alter the mindsets of the audience through the use of emotional appeal.
- Both words and pictures can achieve this appeal.

Please donate to the International Response Fund at redcross.org

Haiti Needs Your Help. Donate Now at redcross.org
• Pathos “tugs at your heartstrings”
Logos

• Logos appeals rely on the audience’s intelligence to persuade them.

• Education causes audiences to be more skeptical of emotional arguments and more receptive to logos.
• The Greek word logos is the basis for the English word logic.

• Logos refers to any attempt to appeal to the intellect, the general meaning of "logical argument."

• Everyday arguments rely heavily on ethos and pathos, but academic arguments rely more on logos: there will be logical chains of reasoning supporting all claims.
NASA sees its mission to explore Mars as an endeavor to seek out the possibility of life on that planet. Knowing if water was on Mars is the first step in this research.
1. Ethos = an ethical or moral argument
2. Pathos = an emotional argument
3. Logos = a logical argument
HUBRIS

*An excess of pride, ambition, arrogance
*Ultimately causes the person’s ruin

(This does not have to do with Ethos, Logos, Pathos. You just need to know it as we read Antigone)